

| | |
|--|--------|
| Maurizio Gotti , Preface | p. 9 |
| David Denison , Some recent changes in the English verb | p. 15 |
| Matti Rissanen , Aspects of the development of the noun phrase in English | p. 35 |
| Rolando Bacchielli , Syntheticity and analyticity in the syntactic make-up of English | p. 55 |
| Axel Hübler , Possessive dative and possessive pronoun in Old English | p. 67 |
| Maria Lima , Notes on the history of the English modals of necessity | p. 77 |
| Nicoletta Francovich Onesti , Verb syntax in the Peterborough Chronicle (1132-54) | p. 89 |
| Gabriella Mazzon , OE and ME incorporated negation and the “negative cycle” | p. 111 |
| Nicola Pantaleo , Coordination and subordination in Dunbar’s metrical syntax | p. 123 |
| R.A. Henderson , Interrogative do in the late 16th and early 17th centuries | p. 139 |
| Domenico Pezzini , The idea of syntax in seventeenth-century English grammars | p. 149 |
| Gabriella Di Martino , Question/answer sequences in didactic dialogues of the 16th-17th centuries | p. 163 |
| Maurizio Gotti , The alleged archaism of morphosyntactic structures in the Authorised Version of the Bible | p. 181 |
| Silvana La Rana , The case of “the” in Early Modern English syntax | p. 199 |
| Roberta Facchinetti , Can vs. may in Early Modern English | p. 209 |
| Gabriella del Lungo Camiciotti , English syntax in the late eighteenth century | p. 223 |
| Edvige Schulte , Diachronic syntax in the poem of William Morris Sigurd The Volsung with reference to his use of Old English linguistic structures and terminology | p. 235 |
| Vivienne Jamieson Perria , Areas of change and areas of conservation in non- literary English. A historical contrastive analysis | p. 249 |
| Stefania Nuccorini , Half a century of verb patterns: from Palmer through Hornby to Cowie | p. 261 |
| Alan Partington , A picture of fevered invention: a collocational history of the intensifier | p. 281 |